THE ABC'S OF LIFE AT TUCKER

Absent:

Occasionally students do find it necessary to miss school. A typical absence involves the following points: actually being sick (or convincing your folks that you are), waiting for a phone call from a teacher, staring at the TV, being bored, calling friends to get the "news," remembering to take a written excuse the next day, making up all work missed, and wondering later if it was all worth it.

Academics:

Somewhere sandwiched in among the pep rallies, sporting events, dances, special days, club meetings, and lengthy conversations, Tucker students find time to concentrate on the real reasons for attending school—reading, writing, and arithmetic. They are proud of their willingness to work, their desire to learn, and their scholastic achievements.

Announcements:

Every morning, voices, enlightening us on the week's events, come out of the little brown box in each classroom. "The Pete and Jim Show" is delightfully entertaining, interestingly informative, and a great way to begin second period. Unless, of course, you have something better to do—like sleep!

Athletics:

There's something for everyone who wants to participate—basketball, football, cross country, baseball, swimming, volleyball, track, tennis, soccer, wrestling, gymnastics, and golf. The Tigers and their fans are #1 in sports and sportsmanship!

Scott Butler:

The 1981 TIGER is proudly dedicated to this remarkable man. Ask almost anyone, "Who has the toughest job on campus?" The answer will be, "Mr. Butler." The job of Assistant Principal in charge of discipline does not ordinarily bring one love and affection. In Mr. Butler's case, it does.

He is a man who firmly holds to traditional moral values. He believes that people are basically good and never insinuates that a student who has "crossed the line" has done more than made a mistake. Punishment is swift, consistent, and tempered by guidance. He wants every student to live up to his potential, to make the best of himself, and he is proud of the progress any student makes. Quick to recognize accomplishments, he is often the one who sparked the changes. A former coach and an all-time cheerleader, Mr. Butler is an energetic motivator—he makes you want to "win one for the Gipper"—or for him—or for yourself!

His wonderful sense of humor, his capacity to love the unloveable, his positive attitude, fairness, and loyalty, and the fact that he makes decisions on the basis of what he would want for his own sons all add dimension to this uncommonly wise man. Because he gives love so freely, it is returned to him just as freely. And because he honestly believes Tucker kids are the greatest anywhere, we think he is the greatest anywhere.

Thanks, Mr. Butler!

Bells:

Perhaps Poe had a vision of our school when he wrote these famous words: "Bells, bells, bells, bells, bells, bells, hear the ringing and the singing of the bells." We have bells to start classes, bells to stop classes, bells that let us go home, bells that send us to lunch, and those that send us outside for fire drills-beautiful singing bells. If only they sang when they were supposed to!

Bicycle:

Students arrive at Tucker by bus, car, motorcycle, bike, and on foot. But there is one very special student whose arrival each day on his three-wheeler brings forth a warm welcome from everyone. "Good morning, Ward!"

B-wing Intersection:

Picture the center of a Demolition Derby, and you're looking at B-wing intersection between classes. Approximately 1700 students converge like stock cars, twist, turn, and dodge each other as they motor toward their destinations. Teachers, parents, and visitors, beware of B-wing when the bell sounds.

Cars:

If you want to see a fascinating assortment of vehicles, just take a look at the THS parking lot. Residing there are automobiles which are as varied as the personalities of the people who drive them.

Clubs:

MOM: Hello!

STUDENT: Mom, just thought I'd call to let you know where I am.

MOM: Well, where are you?

STUDENT: I'm at school. I have a few club meetings tonight.

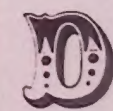

MOM: What time will you be home?

STUDENT: I have meetings at 5:30, 6:30, and 7:00. Oh, there's also one at 7:30. It's gonna be a long night.

MOM: Remember to be quiet when you come in; don't wake your father!

Cuisine:

Visualize soft lights, romantic music, plush surroundings, hushed conversation, and gourmet food. You are not in the THS cafeteria. Nevertheless, while devouring your peanut butter sandwich, pizza, French fries, and slaw, you may find the atmosphere just as stimulating. Bon Appetite!

Dances:

Homecoming ... flowers ... dresses
... dinner ... Snoball ... Junior-Senior
... tuxes ... pictures ... Senior Ball ...
good times ....

Dating:

One of the main extra-curricular activities at THS is "The Dating Game." Most dating occurs on weekends, but the "preliminaries" often begin at school.

Exams:

Reading ... making notes ... outlining ... cramming ... biting fingernails ... panicking ... sweating ... memorizing ... recalling ... generalizing ... synthesizing ... discovering ... agonizing ... sitting ... writing ... passing! And then, a few days to relax!

Excuses:

The car wouldn't start ... My locker wouldn't open ... My dog had puppies this morning ... I had an appointment with my counselor ... I missed the bus ... I got caught by the train ... My watch stopped ... I had a fight with my boyfriend ... The teacher wouldn't let us out of class ... I was attacked by an enormous gorilla ....

Teachers have heard them all-except this one: "It's my fault; I'll try to be more prompt."

Fashion:

Designer clothes and chains are an essential part of the wardrobe of the well-dressed student. Izod, Vanderbilt, Levi's, Cardin, Dior, Klein, Jordache, Sasson, Britannia, Bon Jour, Zena-is the world of high fashion at Tucker High.

Friends:

Friends can be faithful or fair-weather, but they are a necessary, desirable part of life. School is a place to make friends, to meet in groups and laugh, to exchange gossip, and plan all kinds of adventures. If you are looking for a friend, check out A-wing lobby any morning.

Gossip:

Gossip makes the rumors go 'round.

Hair:

Is it a bird; is it a plane; is it Kojak? No, it's the Tucker football players. As the teams swarm into the gym for a pep rally, the lights bounce off scores of shining, bald heads while Tucker barbers sit in their shops gleefully counting their new-found wealth. In the words of an anonymous player, "We gave our all for team spirit." Let's hope it all grows back.

Homeroom:

As a subbie, you are given one special place which will follow you all the days of your high school career. It's a place to vote, to plan your schedule, to receive notices and to experience the ecstasy or agony of report cards. Your homeroom teacher travels with you as you journey through five years of Tucker experiences. Homeroom-it's not mother, but it's the next best thing.

In-house Suspension:

What's the least "in" place to be at Tucker called? In-house suspension. The rare student who, for one reason or another, has crossed the line between good manners and bad is provided with a quiet place in which to consider his behavior and catch up on his schoolwork. Seldom does he find it desirable to pay a second visit.

Janitors:

The people with the most patience and perseverance at THS have to be our custodians. They arrive long before school starts and leave long after it ends. They put up with our signs, paper wads, spit balls, gum, and spilled food. They sweep, mop, scrub, shine, repair, and install. They know how messy we really are but love us anyway. Thank you!

Jeans:

The official uniform of Tucker High School seems to be jeans. They decorate the derrieres of everyone from Subbies to Seniors. They come in all sizes and shapes and can even be seen on our "withit" faculty members on Fridays. Levi Strauss started a denim epidemic!

Jobs:

Many Tucker students hold down part-time jobs in the Tucker area. For example, you can find familiar faces at Bonanza, Kroger, Davison's, McDonald's, Wendy's, Burger King, Richway, Chick-Fil-A, and Pizza Hut. Besides the obvious benefit of having more money to spend, these teenagers are learning real world skills.

Knowledge:

Throughout his school years a student accumulates a body of facts collectively termed knowledge. For example, he learns that  $2x + 1 = 5$  when  $x = 2$ , that World War II came after World War I, and that an adjective modifies a noun. He also learns a multitude of things that cannot be found in any textbook.

Library Books:

There are three types of library books: the ones you want to read, the ones you have to read, and the ones you ignore. The ones you want to read or have to read are always checked out while the ones you prefer to ignore are always there (Deaton's Law).

Licenses:

A teenager's 16th birthday! He musters his courage and faces the ordeal. The test begins. The most dreaded obstacle is parallel parking. He masters that, and the examiner disappointedly approves. The license is his at last. He relaxes; his parents worry.

Lockers:

At home each student fights a war against clutter in order to pass Mom's general inspection. However, at school, feeling free from the clutches of Mom, a student surrenders unconditionally to sloppiness. And his locker, a veritable closet away from home, becomes the embodiment of untidiness.

Motorcycles:

Many students ride motorcycles to school. In comparison to cars, motorcycles get good gas mileage and are very practical. However, the practicality seems less important when it rains.

Movies:

Everyone knows that a teenager's meager allowance disappears quickly. For $3.50 one can sit back and be entertained for two hours. There are movies for those who want to laugh, cry, or scream. And for people with a dramatic flair, there is the "Rocky Horror Picture Show."

Ninety-Six Rock:

This is the radio station listened to by many Tucker students. Its fans appreciate the fact that there are few commercials, and they enjoy the pure quality of the rock music.

Noise:

One important aspect of Tucker is the noise. Noise can be found in several places such as B-wing intersection, the cafeteria, the gym during pep rallies, and at times, the library.

Notes:

Have you ever had a teacher who gives fact-filled notes? You write and write until you feel your hand is about to fall off. You dutifully take down everything she says; you carefully put them in a "safe" place day-after-day. And then, naturally, you lose them the night before the big test!

Orientation:

Mass confusion describes Orientation Day well. Eighth graders and their mothers wander around trying to find schedules, buy annuals and newspapers, and get the student's picture made. Students with more experience enjoy talking with their friends and catching up on the summer's events. Orientation is the first step toward going back to school.

Open Campus:

The privilege of Open Campus used to mean that most Seniors could sleep late and/or leave early. Now it's called "Minimum Day" and it means they have to work!

Phones:

Got a dime I can borrow? I have to make an important call. Gee, look at that line! Oh well, I'll wait. There's a free one! Let's see the number is ... ah, there it is. Wait a minute, this phone just ate my dime!

Procrastination:

Next to the common cold, this disease causes more academic casualties than any other disorder. A typical case develops like this: It's 6:00 and you're glad to be home! You have about 3 hours of regular homework, but a quick check of the TV Guide reveals that a great movie is on tonight. You weigh the pros and cons of TV watching; the pros win. The homework can be done during first period.

If you can relate to this experience, you suffer from procrastination. The best method for combatting this ailment: Keep a stiff upper lip, and turn the television off!

PSAT:

There are rumors that PSAT means Painful Savage Acute Torture.

Quarterback Club:

This organization of parents and other football fans meets on Monday nights to chow down, watch football, and take note of the teams' progress. The selling of spirit items and the sponsoring of a dance help bring in the money needed to support a first-class program.

Quizzes:

Nothing strikes fear in the hearts of students more than these words: "Clear off your desks and get out a clean sheet of paper."

Rings:

A senior ring signifies that a student has reached that magic year of believed superiority.

Rowdy:

Tucker students spell spirit
R-O-W-D-Y!
Roaring rallies
Optimistic outlooks
Winning
Diehard dedication
Yelling

SAT:

It's 8:30 on a Saturday morning, and instead of being at home in bed you are at school. Why? It's the SAT, of course. With a No. 2 pencil in your hand, a gum eraser on your desk, and a lucky rabbit's foot in your pocket, you settle down and begin to tackle the granddaddy of all tests.

Sleep:

Sleep is the epitome of delightful inactivity.

Spirit Stick:

This innocent-looking piece of wood is the cause of many battles in the gym as each class tries to out-perform the other classes. "This week the spirit stick goes to ..." is the high point of the week for many students.

Studying:

Tomorrow you have major tests in three of your classes, so tonight the studying begins. You open all your books to the appropriate pages and recline in your favorite chair. Within minutes ... Z-Z-Z-Z-Z ...

Tardy:

Being tardy to class helps develop a student's ingenuity. He must (a) figure out a route to class that avoids administrators and teachers and (b) come up with a plausible excuse to tell his teachers. If either strategy fails, the student is likely to experience detention. The mere thought of such a fate is a strong incentive to be more prompt.

Teachers:

Each teacher has his own "famous phrase" designed to prod, reproach, encourage, or inspire. See if you can identify the following phrases: O-KAAAY ... I dare say ... I have no qualms ... Is it not? ... Johnny Consumer ... Now, you young people ... Brain Rot ... Editorial Comment ... Moving right along ... CorRECT ... Sh-h-h-h ....

Tucker:

Tucker is a perfect example of the traditional small town. Members of the community have much civic pride, and they demonstrate it by participating in the activities of the schools, businesses, and churches. Though Tucker is not large in size, it is big in heart.

U:

U-unsatisfactory. U's occasionally show up on report cards under conduct. They mean you blew it.

Uniforms:

Friday is the day for uniforms. You can identify team, flag corps, band, cheerleading, drill team, and majorette squad members. These people work long hours to bring credit to THS.

Varsity:

McDonald's has the Big Mac, Burger King has the Whopper, but only the Varsity has the ultimate chili dog. With side orders of French fries and onion rings cooked in that special Varsity grease, the meal is a delight, and you return to Tucker knowing you have experienced one of the true wonders of the world.

Victory:

Most people are working towards victory in one way or another. Making good grades, winning a game, placing well in competition, and finishing a project are all forms of victory. A victory may be either public or private, but the ultimate reward is always personal satisfaction.

Wild 'n Crazy:

This describes both Steve Martin and the students of THS.

Walls:

THS has many interesting walls. Besides holding up the building (and often people as well), the walls are a source of information. After walking through the school, an observant person knows the events that are in store for him during the next few weeks. Some walls, such as those in the chorus room, display the creativity of Tucker students, but only the ones in Mrs. Bray's office express that mighty Tiger Spirit.

Wisdom:

Wisdom is leaving the library with your books properly checked out, being a Senior prepared for college, and passing Chemistry taught by Coach Thompson.

X:

X marks the spot where you have the wrong answer.

Xerox:

This machine enables teachers to duplicate tests, quizzes, and worksheets. Students don't like that! Students don't like that! Students don't like that!

X-tra Credit:

Some teachers allow their students to improve their grades with extra credit work. Extra credit can be a lifesaver, especially if you have a zero or two.

Yearbook:

It can't always be perfect!

Yelling:

Tucker fans love to yell at pep rallies, ball games, and even at lunch.

Zeroes:

Zeroes can be earned by procrastinating, not studying, cheating, forgetting homework, etc. Once you have one, you can never get rid of it.

The 1980 Homecoming Parade played a big part in the Homecoming festivities. After a week of hard work and fun, Saturday finally arrived. The floats were judged before the parade by D.J. "John Boy" Bryant, Joyce Hairston, and Walter Henderson. The Junior Class won first place, while the Freshmen and Sophomores took second and third places, respectively. The parade was led down Main Street by the Varsity Cheerleaders and the locally-famous "Tiger on Wheels." The band, flag corps, and drill teams also marched in the parade. Playing from the back of a truck, the Alumni Band added to the excitement. Also in the parade were banners made by various clubs at Tucker. The 1980 Homecoming Parade was definitely an exciting one.

Feeling
 Feeling dizzy from the smell
 Of Honeysuckle and crabapple
 Blossoms which hang in the Warm night air is like the taste
 Of the sugar that goes in my Coffee every December morning.
 the sweet lingers bitterly
 And welcomes a misty heart.
 -Colleen Kelley

Windows
 A window
 Viewing its circumstance
 The drudge life it leads
 The obscure surroundings
 Through cloudy reflections
 It sees a bitter world
 Unchanging, a dungeonus
 Another
 Reflecting on life
 The familiar scope
 The relative contentment
 By clear perspective
 It feels an inviting home
 Unselfish, a promising future

The Gift
 A young man on a silent street
 Came up to me and placed
 His tiny golden key in my hand.
 The delicately shaped object
 Molded perfectly in my palm
 As if it were made for mine alone.
 I smiled at the man, thanking him,
 And walked away as if his gift were Justified and I were worthy.
 My back I turned and briskly
 My legs carried me far,
 Far away from my benefactor.
 Soon I lost the desire to
 Hurry and began to take my time;
 For why hurry to the door?
 If I alone held the key my haste was unfounded, and all could wait until
 I developed the urge to try my gift.
 Then as I slowly made my way down
 The chosen path-there branched off
 Many new ways, tempting ways which caught
 My eye and which I took.
 And now-if I could only find the door ...

Love

Seeping Slowly
Washing grain by grain
the walls of my castle
Once so high
Surging closer, then retreating
Is it gone? Am I free?
Back again. Ever closer.
The surf pulls down my walls
Pounding, Pounding
My heart-or the sea?
My castle is flooded.
The tide triumphs.
Then recedes, leaving trails of foam
My castle has crumbled
Nothing remains of my defenses
They are swept away by the ocean
Like my castle.

Dreams

Like pink cotton candy,
they melt in a flash.
They live in the attic
with dust and with ash.
So few keep on living
so many will die.
And the scars on our hearts
are the answers to why
We keep on believing with highest esteem.
We hold on to hoping for yesterday's dream.

-Merrie Williams

Where is the Star?

Where is the star of tomorrow,
Where all of my memories are lost?
I'm longing to be in tomorrow,
Where never before have you stopped.
Don't wait here and ask you,
Where is the star of our love?
That one star to me is more precious,
Than all of the stars up above.

Time

Time is a whirlwind of happenings
That march up each day;
Time is a silent
That drifts for each his way.

So enjoy each day as it passes on,
Don't get left behind;
Because time, although a thief
Can be so very kind.

-RLN

Dreams and Fantasies

The mist of the morning is rising,
And now come the first rays of light
And flying away in the darkness,
Are the dreams of the previous night.

The carousel music is dying away.
The fireworks are no longer bright.
And flying away in the darkness,
Are the dreams of the previous night.

And over the tops of the hazy green trees,
The silvery moon floats silently over
The shores of the emerald seas.
The carousel turns on its endless course,
And it's off on our horses we ride.
The music spins off in oblivion,
As we ride through the night side by side.
But the dreams of the night end with morning,
And we go through the motions and plight.
And the dreams flew away with the
darkness,
To the fantasies lived in the night.

I'd like to stretch my Legs out and sink
Back into the chair
Before the fireplace
Which used to house
A fire of warmth
And not one of confusion
And unrest.

I'd like to open
Webster's
And discover the Impossibly restful
Definition of relaxation.

The shadows, they follow
Their relative forms
Lurking in darkness
Behind conquering heroes
The men, they exist
Without true life
Breathing yet dying
Ultimate subjugation
These, they live
In the path set by forerunners
Traveling in footsteps
Of true men.

The soul searches out toward
Expanses of beyond,
Venturing away from
darkness
To meet with the dawn.
The bright realm of truth
Undelivered to man,
The quest for the unknown
God's unrevealed plan.
We strive for the righteous
Preparation or after-life,
Eternal redemption
The conquest of strife.
The dedication of life
To Him above
Who breathed in us life
A token of love.
And so we search onward
Toward unephmeral
days,
The One's unfolding
Determined pathways
-John Tyler

When all promises are forgotten, and dreams
have again faded, I put them back into my box.

As the top closes, the sunlight fades, and
Laughter I had heard of small children (perhaps even me) seems to disappear into the darkness.

I slowly
come down from the attic, and from my hide away. Reality sweeps my past back into its cracked, cobwebbed corner, and loneliness
again takes over.

Though I've again failed, one day it'll
all come back-one day I'll do it.
The time lock will be broken, and all will be thrown into the past. Dreams of yesterday,
will become the dreams of tomorrow, and
I like many others will hide age within its promises.

The fashion scene of Tucker High is experiencing a wave of change. Fashions range from the preppy look of khakis, dock-siders, and oxford shirts, to the Western attire of hats, boots, and cowboy shirts. Designer logos appear everywhere: Izod alligators, Gloria Vanderbilt swans and Ralph Lauren polo players. Designer clothes may be in fashion, but Tucker students still rate grubby T-shirts, faded Levis', and worn out tennis shoes as their favorite attire.

Facing the toughest competition in eight years, the Varsity Tigers emerged with an exceptional 5-3-2 record. The season opened with an exciting 7-0 win over Southwest DeKalb. The fourth game of the season brought Tucker face to face with their traditional rival, Lakeside. In a brutal defensive struggle, the two teams battled to a scoreless tie. Spirits remained high as the Tigers defeated Forsyth 30-7 in the Homecoming game. Victories, including a 21-7 win over Dunwoody, set the Tigers up for a possible playoff spot. Unfortunately, the loss to Clarke Central shattered the playoff hopes. The Tigers ended their season after facing four of the top ten teams in the state.
